COMMENT OF THE DAY

Tory Conference

FROM all accounts it appears that the parliamentary wing of the Conservative Party and particularly its ministerial leaders are due to receive some torrid criticism at the Llandudno party conference which opens today. One observer remarks that "on the surface, it would seem that not since Baldwin's early years has the Tory Party been so at odds with its leaders." The list of 394 resolutions in record which reflect anxiety over Suez, criticize high taxation, condemn inflation, deplore wage demands, points to the prevailing discontent.

Past conferences have been remarkable for their general placidity and respectability. Mild debate, congratulatory resolutions and dutiful applause marked the meetings following the Woolton renouveau of the party in the immediate post-war years. The inspired leadership of Sir Winston Churchill encouraged this untroubled atmosphere, but since his departure his successors have been exposed to a more searching inquiry by the middle-class rank and file who have found it both impossible and intolerable to accept an apparently snow-balling deterioration chiefly in the cost of living.

A PART from such vexed domestic questions as putting value back in the pound, stabilizing economic conditions, reducing taxation, restraining wage demands, British policy on Suez will be high on the agenda for discussion. Some difference of opinion on the conduct of the Government's case must be expected, though endorsement of Sir Anthony Eden's general principles of international control of the Canal is almost certain.

The party is also expected to make its voice felt for the first time on Britain's proposal for closer association with the new "free trade" and common market plans for Western Europe. Some Conservatives, particularly those who support Britain's Imperial Preference arrangements with her Commonwealth partners, are expected to be sharply critical of the plan. Mr Macmillan's report may, however, convince many of the vital necessity of the new plan and give some indication of the extent to which it can help Britain's economic recovery.

These are some of the issues that are likely to capture the limelight at Llandudno. Most Tories would agree, however, that coming less than midway through its current term of office the sharpest of criticism can only do good. Post-election complacency has possibly disappeared completely and anxiously fully aroused both on the Home front and overseas by recent events. But it is timely to review election promises and, where necessary, to give assurances of attentive action to new complications that have arisen.

Kowloon Riots
It is inappropriate, so soon after the event, to indulge in any detailed comment on last night's sudden outburst of violence in Kowloon. It is sufficient today to commend the gallant restraint of the Hongkong Police force on their handling of the situation despite severe provocation and to commend the measures they took to control unruly crowds on several occasions during the night.

Impetuous outbursts like these are of course to be deplored. Behind the disorderly hooligans and provocateurs were at work inciting unruliness and against those elements must be laid the blame for the death and destruction which ensued. Another apparently impetuous act which triggered the initial outbreak also deserves condemnation and the results of this rash action bear witness to the folly of impulsive behaviour.

KOWLOON RIOTS CONTINUE

Mobs Turn To Looting

RADIO HK MAN ATTACKED

Mobs of rioters, who for 12 hours previously had attacked police and civilians with bricks and bottles and set fire to buildings in Kowloon, this morning indulged in looting shops in the Shamshuipo district.

Shortly after 9 o'clock a small toy shop and a compradore's store near the Apollo Theatre in Castle Peak Road were invaded. Some of the goods were taken into the street and set on fire.

When a police contingent arrived to disperse the crowd they were attacked with stones.

Two police vans, a fire engine, a police jeep and a private car were also targets for the rioters' missiles.

Because of this incident, bus services on the No. 6 route were suspended and school children in the Shamshuipo area were sent home.

The branch office of the Chow Sang goldsmith shop at 67 Tai Po Road was looted by rioters and hooligans at about 3 a.m., and a large part of the gold jewellery in the shop was stolen.

A staff member of the shop told the China Mail that the shop had suffered damage amounting to over $30,000.

It was reported that rioters and hooligans wrenched a pipe from the street railing and poked a small window of the shop. They also broke open the iron gate on the Tai Po Road side and scoured into the premises. The shop was completely smashed up with glass, mirrors and broken furniture lying all over the place.

Two other Chinese food products companies in Tai Po Road and Nathan Road were also attacked and looted. The shop in Tai Po Road suffered considerable loss.

About 1,200 people surrounded a private car in the Li Cheng Uk Resettlement area compound this morning and set fire to it. A group of Special Police tried to disperse the crowd, but the crowd turned on them, hurling stones.

The Specials returned to Police headquarters for reinforcements and a large detachment returned to Li Cheng Uk and beat the crowd back with tear gas.

The crowd fell back, hurling stones at the police.

At the Kowloon Traffic Office this morning were stationed two Army signallers. They were sending back reports of the disturbances to Whitefield Barracks.

One told a China Mail reporter if the situation deteriorated Royal Artillery units would be called out.

This morning the Police Reserve, the Special Constabulary and the Auxiliary Fire Services were mobilized.

Reform Club Statement

The Reform Club issued the following statement this morning concerning the riots:

The Reform Club considers that the action of the Resettlement Supervisor in ordering the removal of certain flags was most regrettable.

It is felt, however, that the subsequent rioting must have been organized by a small and irresponsible element as it is utterly out of keeping with the character of the Cantonese people and the co-operation previously experienced from the settlers of the Resettlement Areas.

The Reform Club will press for a full investigation into the causes of the rioting and the organization, if any, behind it.

Workers Stranded

Thousands of workers and school children were stranded early this morning through lack of transportation. No buses were running up until after 8 a.m., but the normal services were functioning by 9.30.

Here are some eyewitness stories of some of this morning's incidents in Kowloon:

At about 2.30 a crowd in Nathan Road was driven from Dundas Street to Waterloo Road by squads of police who used tear gas bombs.

As the mob retreated to Waterloo Road, there were shouts of "beat him up" and a Chinese was seen being chased. As he neared a lane he was caught up by the mob and at the junction of Waterloo Road the crowd gathered around him in hostile mood.

Before they had decided whether or not to molest the man, the mob had their attention attracted to the Student Book Store, just south of Waterloo Road. Four or five of them rushed at the store and kicked at the doors violently, but without result.

Throws Stones Back

A few minutes later they saw a European in a passing taxi and they at once hurled stones at it.

Inside was Mr John Wallace, well-known Radio Hongkong commentator. He was hit by several stones. Picking some up from the floor of the taxi, he threw

STOP PRESS

TROOPS CALLED

Troops are being moved into Kowloon to quell rioting. It was announced early this afternoon.

A special Government communiqué released at 1.15 p.m. said in view of the fact that there had been further incidents this morning for which police were being called in, the Government had issued the following grave warnings:

"No further assemblies in the affected areas will be tolerated and severe action will be taken against any further outbreaks of lawlessness. Residents of the Shamshuipo and Li Cheng Uk areas are strongly advised to stay indoors for the remainder of today both for their own protection and in order to assist the authorities in maintaining law and order."

"Developing Questions & Answers"

Lloyd, Pineau & Fawzi Have Second Meeting

New York, Oct. 10.

The British, French and Egyptian foreign ministers discussed the Suez dispute for more than two and a half hours at United Nations headquarters today, but did not get past the exploratory stage.

The ministers will meet again tomorrow morning.

Today's meeting, like the first one last night, was at the invitation of Mr Dag Hammarskjöld, United Nations Secretary-General, and was held in his office on the 38th floor of the headquarters skyscraper.

Afterwards, M. Christian Pineau, French Foreign Minister, said: "We have been developing questions and answers without any hard commitments from either side."

Asked if tomorrow morning's meeting would be the last for the three ministers, he said: "I do not know. We may meet again in the afternoon."

SECRET SESSION

M. Bernard Cornut-Gentille, French permanent representative who accompanied M. Pineau at the meeting, said tomorrow afternoon's secret session of the Security Council would go ahead as planned, but would be "brief."

He said not enough had developed to justify a longer meeting.

There would probably be a public meeting of the Council on Friday, he said.

As Mr Lloyd left the building he told reporters: "There is no switch in British policy. There is no new British plan. We meet again at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and I hope we will have a useful discussion." —Reuter.

Terrorists Strike

Singapore, Oct. 10. Communist terrorists stabbed two Malayan rubber workers and scattered Communist pamphlets around their bodies, an official communiqué released today said.—Reuter.

ISRAELIS LAUNCH ATTACK

Tel-Aviv, Oct. 10.

Unofficial reports here tonight said Israeli troops had launched an attack in the Qalqilya area on the Jordan border, northeast of Tel-Aviv.

Israeli villagers at Kfar Saba reported hearing the sound of gunfire.

The target of the Israeli forces was believed to be Jordanian fortified positions at the Qalqilya bulge of the "Arab triangle" which juts into Israel's coastal belt.

The attack was believed by observers to be an Israeli reprisal action for yesterday's attack and last Thursday's murder of five Israelis in an ambush of cars near Sedom.—Reuter.

Ambassador Resigns

Rabat, Oct. 10.

M. Andre Louis Dubois has handed in his resignation from his post as French Ambassador to Morocco, it was disclosed in Rabat today.

Dubois submitted his written resignation to the President, Rene Coty, through the French Premier, Guy Mollet.—France-Press.

PORT SAID TO BE FREE ZONE

Port Said, Oct. 10.

The city of Port Said is to become a free zone, exempt from customs and taxation.

It was officially announced today that a law has been drafted and will shortly be submitted for signature to the President of the Republic to this effect.

Well-informed sources said the whole city as well as the port will be placed under this regime, so that people travelling through the Canal can purchase goods there from all over the world at much lower prices than elsewhere.

The port may eventually become a supply centre for all Middle East countries, the sources said.

Official circles said this step had been planned for some time but could only become possible once the Canal was nationalized.—France-Press.

POZNAN DEFENDANT NOT AN IDIOT Objects To Plea By Counsel

Poznan, Oct. 10.

Burly Janusz Kulas, described by a doctor as a paranoiac schizophrenic, jumped up in a Poznan riot court today and shouted at the defence lawyers "stop trying to make me out an idiot."

Earlier the Judge had quoted a report by Dr. Jozef Zaroski in 1953 that Kulas, known as "Eddie Polo" and the "Italian Bandit", suffered from a serious form of "split mind", was incapable of normal thinking and was "a danger to the community."

Another doctor told defence lawyers from the witness box that Kulas was a psychopath whose understanding and actions would be influenced by the riots which flared up in Poznan on June 28.

Kulas, 19, six feet tall, fair-haired and broad-shouldered, growled and said "there is no basis for all this talk."

Strange Child

"For example, I have my driving licence and have never had an accident. I am asking the defence to defend me in the Poznan events and not to try to make me out an idiot."

The prosecution alleged that he was prominent in armed raids by scores of youths on police stations during the riots, in which 53 died and 200 were wounded.

After Dr. Zaroski told the court in evidence that Kulas's parents said he was a "strange child" and "uncontrollable," the Judge read a letter Kulas was said to have written to his father and mother in 1953 when he was in trouble and ran away from home.

Asked by the Judge to say whether the letter was in his handwriting, Kulas replied, "I want to be judged on the Poznan incidents and leave this other business out."

Earlier the Court shook with laughter when Kulas rose to "correct" a statement by a witness who said he saw Kulas and another man fighting in a restaurant toilet.

Kulas said "the man was a friend of mine. When he heard I was training to be a boxer he said 'come on, let's go to the washroom and have a go.' When we left we were perfectly good friends and did not feel angry at all."

Tank On Fire

A Polish army tank officer told the Court trying Kulas and seven others aged between 18 and 25 that people set his tank on fire with petrol when it was sent to guard security police headquarters, and beat him up when he jumped out.

They hit him over the head, and dragged him into a doorway, tearing the stars off his epaulettes and shouting that he had murdered people.

Voices shouted "shoot him" and a man pointed a weapon at his head, he said.

The officer said his tank, which arrived on the scene at four p.m., had not fired as he and his crew had no orders to fire and no ammunition.

Tank Taken Over

One of the men in the dock, Roman Bulczynski, 19, said that between one and two p.m. he saw a tank firing with machine guns and people near him fell wounded.

One of the court's three prosecutors said, "this was the tank that was taken over by civilians."—Reuter.

Special Soviet Planes For Hatoyama

Moscow, Oct. 10.

The Russians have decided to send three special planes to Stockholm to bring Japanese Prime Minister Hatoyama and his party to Moscow, Japanese sources said today.

Instead of arriving during the evening on Friday at Vnukovo Airport outside Moscow, the Japanese Premier with 19 other delegates and 8 correspondents will fly in at the central airport within the city limits which is reserved for "VIPs."

The decision was announced to the Japanese official in charge of the advance party, Counsellor Kinuya Nizaki, when he visited the Foreign Ministry this afternoon.

Mr. Nizaki was also told that Mr. Hatoyama would stay at the official Spiridonovka guest house.

The last-minute change in plan appeared to indicate that Mr. Hatoyama would be met with a full ceremonial welcome accorded to foreign premiers, through it was thought improbable that he would be greeted by streets lined with cheering crowds which had been organized for other heads of Asian governments.

In view of his earlier arrival it was believed that the Japanese Premier might be able to complete courtesy visits on Marshal Bulganin and other Soviet leaders on Friday afternoon and begin formal discussions on Saturday.—Reuter.

Bundestag Meets In Berlin

Berlin, Oct. 10.

The West German Bundestag, Lower House of the Federal Parliament, today met in Berlin for the second time in its seven-year-old history and pledged itself to continue striving for the reunification of Germany.

The Bundestag, like the Federal Cabinet, from time to time is meeting in West Berlin to emphasize its belief in reunification and its belief that Berlin should once again become the capital of a united Germany.

Dr. Eugen Gerstenmaier, the Bundestag President (Speaker) said in an opening address that the temporary removal of the Bundestag to Berlin reflected the desire of all Germans for reunification.

"We have lost the war, and now peace must be won by all. But nobody will win if Germany remains divided," Dr. Gerstenmaier declared.—Reuter.

SECRET POLICE MAN ARRESTED IN HUNGARY

Vienna, Oct. 10.

Hungary has arrested the secret police son of an ousted Stalinist Defence Minister, the official Hungarian news agency announced today.

Iron Curtain experts identified one of four Hungarian security officers announced arrested as Vladimir Farkas, son of ousted Defence Minister Mihaly Farkas, a faithful Stalinist and close associate of purged Hungarian Premier Matyas Rakosi.

The Hungarian news agency announcement said only that the four had been arrested and charged with "violating the socialist laws." It did not say specifically what their crimes had been.

Security Officer

Refugee sources said the younger Farkas was a high security officer known for his cruelty in interrogation. They said he was reported to have arrested Hungarian Communist Party Central Committee member Janos Kadar, who was recently rehabilitated as "one of the comrades innocently persecuted by the Beria gang in Hungary."

Kadar, now a member of the Hungarian Politburo, is believed to be one of the up and coming party officials and has been pegged by some observers as a possible successor to party boss Enno Geroc.

Austrians who recently returned from Hungary said they had tortured Kadar by pulling out his fingernails when he interrogated him in the headquarters of the secret police in Budapest.

Observers here believe the arrest of Farkas and the other three officers will be followed by the detention of other "Stalinists."

Expelled

Antal Apró, a Deputy Premier, said last Saturday when speaking at the rebuttal of rehabilitation "Titoist" László Rajk that "all who took part in the persecution of our comrades will be made responsible for their crimes."

Vladimir Farkas is the son of former Defence Minister Farkas.

Automatic Morse Converter

Tokyo, Oct. 10.

A mechanic of Japan's International Communications Company, Kokusai Denhin Denwa, has built an automatic converter which changes ordinary morse signals into printed page reports.

The inventor Mr. Taisaku Wada said today his converter was cheaper and simpler to construct and maintain than the electronic devices now in use in Britain, and was the only converter known to be able to perform the entire process of receiving more signals, converting them to five unit code for teletypewriter and of printing in page form in one operation.

OLYMPIC TESTS

An executive of the company said the new converter would be tested under practical working conditions during the forthcoming Olympic Games in Melbourne. He said the converter would receive more broadcasts relayed from Singapore as the company's station 60 miles out of Tokyo and distribute the messages over teleprinter circuits in Japan.

The executive said the saving in time from the old manual methods of conversion would be about 50 per cent while the gains in both accuracy and economy would be considerable.—Reuter.

RIGHT OBJECTIVE FOR ASIA?

Bandung, Oct. 10. The question of whether self-sufficiency was the right objective of agricultural policy in Asian countries was raised at the third regional conference of the Food and Agriculture Organisation here today.

Dr Eric Ohlala of New Zealand, Secretary-General of the conference, asked the question during a discussion of "selective expansion of agricultural production and consumption."

He said this provided the basis for talk about the continuing need for expanding production while recognising that greater efforts must be made to direct towards products where relatively greater demand might be expected.

Mr Ohlala asked: "What price is a country prepared to pay for self-sufficiency? Is total food security at a low level of well-being preferable to some economic vulnerability at a much higher level of welfare achieved through trade?"

SELECTIVE

The possibilities for expanding agricultural production in Asian countries were discussed but "selective expansion" involved "very many complex problems."

Some of these problems, put before the conference by delegates, included differences in soils and climate and the difficulty of getting peasant peoples to change their diet to meet changes in food available for consumption.

The Australian Ambassador to the Philippines, Mr M. R. K. Shum, said the term "selective expansion" should be very carefully defined.

"If it means that we all concentrate on what we can best produce and exchange these goods between ourselves then well and good."

But if it should mean accentuating economic nationalism in wasteful ways to the detriment of economic relations between countries we would have grave doubts about it," he said.

STABLE WORLD

Australia recognised the need for stable world commodity markets along with any selective expansion programme, he said.

A committee will draw up recommendations in connection with the subject and report back to the conference which continues until October 19.—Reuter.

Titoism REINSTATEMENT OF FORMER PARTY SECRETARY

By K. C. THALER

London, Oct. 10.

Poland today was reported on the verge of a move towards a Tito-type regime.

A government reshuffle was held imminent which would herald the full reinstatement of Wladyslaw Gomulka, former party secretary who was ousted and imprisoned in a Stalinist purge after Tito's 1948 walkout.

Arrangements Suggested For Tangier

Tangier, Oct. 11.

Moroccan Foreign Minister, Ahmed Balafout, today promised that Tangier would retain a "liberal economic and financial status" when the present international regime, governing the city, was wound up.

Balafout said the new arrangement must not harm Moroccan economy or currency and that he would ask the help of foreign diplomats in reaching the appropriate decisions.

The Moroccan Foreign Minister was speaking after the preliminary session of the closed-door diplomatic conference to decide the future status of Tangier.

INVESTMENT

He said: "We met to discuss the liquidation of the special international regime in Tangier in which Morocco had no part, and I can assure you that we shall take into account the legitimate interests of officials of the old international administration."

Balafout said Morocco would encourage the investment of foreign capital in Tangier. He said: "There will be much greater facility for the inflow of capital in Tangier. Formerly, investors complained that the dual system of the protectorate was an obstacle. We hope now that they will be able to return to Tangier in all security."

The Foreign Minister, who said he was optimistic about the outcome of the conference, said that a later session today would study the working procedure and the setting up of various commissions.—France-Press.

The "resignation" yesterday of Hilary Minc, Poland's chief economic planner, appeared to have paved the way for the return to power of Gomulka. Minc had personally helped to oust Gomulka.

A special meeting of the Polish Communist Party's Central Committee called for next Monday was expected to bring important decisions.

Question Mark

Expert observers believed it would result in victory of advocates of "liberalisation" over the Stalinist diehards, reportedly led by Defence Minister Marshal Konstantin Rokossovski and Vice-Premier Zenon Novak, a member of the Politburo.

Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz is understood to be siding with the "liberal" wing.

But the great question mark is: will Russia look on actively while Poland slides away from Kremlin tutelage?

Earlier this week it had been reported that Moscow had reinforced her armed forces in Poland by four divisions, seemingly in anticipation of trouble.

Poland is the key to Russia's hold over her East European empire. She not only shares a long frontier with Russia but is also one of the most important of the satellites.

Since the de-Stalinisation course in Russia gained momentum earlier this year, political and ideological ferment has gone further in Poland than in any of the Soviet satellites in Europe.

Into Open

There have been growing indications that powerful forces have since been operating within the country even among ruling Communists towards greater independence from Russia.

The June 28 Poznan riots brought into open the general discontent that had been simmering under the surface. The conduct of the current Poznan trials has been held as a strong indication that the regime preferred to "go easy" for fear of open revolt.

The envy of the Yugoslav system of national communism has been dormant in Poland since Gomulka was sent to prison. His influence apparently has continued to work inside the country in favour of a "socialism" more suited to Western standards than the Muscovite pattern.

As a result of the "thaw" Gomulka—who previously had been a Deputy Premier and the party's First Secretary—was readmitted to the party last August. But he was reported to have declined office until his opponents have been removed from power. Minc was one of them.

Lacking Faith

A member of the Politbureau, Minc was said to have been mainly responsible for Gomulka's expulsion in 1948. Minc branded Gomulka as a man "lacking faith in Stalin."

Gomulka's return has reportedly been demanded by several members of the Politbureau, including Premier Cyrankiewicz.

Expert observers believed that this would amount to a move of defiance against Russia and the beginning of a Tito-type of regime in Poland. A further purge was reported imminent both in the Government and the party.

Last Tuesday three vice-ministers in the machine industry were dismissed. This preceded the resignation yesterday of Minc, the virtual dictator of Poland's industry.

Opposed Moscow

Economic troubles have been largely blamed for the outbreak of the Poznan riots. Too speedy industrialisation, at the expense of consumer goods production, has also been a major factor in these developments.

Minc exerted influence as an administrator and theoretician on the lines of Stalinist orthodox economy, though he was said at times to have opposed Moscow's intransigent demands.—United Press.

CHRISTIAN HISTORY STUDY

Cairo, Oct. 10.

An international nine-man committee of experts in the Coptic language and early Christian history has now begun examining the 13 volumes of 3rd Century Gnostic manuscripts discovered near Luxor ten years ago.

The discovery of these manuscripts, written on papyrus leaves bound in soft leather, has been described as one of the most sensational of this century.

The Gnostics were early Christian heretics who flourished between the first and sixth century of this era, and the major part of present day knowledge concerning them has been based on references rather than on direct manuscripts. A first examination of the 13 volumes, nine at least of which are in perfect condition, reveals that they contain the complete text of the Gospel according to St. Thomas, believed to have been written before the four Gospels collected in the Bible.

TEN YEARS

Work on the manuscripts is expected to take at least ten years. The committee, which consists of four Egyptian experts and five Europeans, plans to publish the manuscripts and is empowered to bring in any specialists it needs to help. It plans to make about 100 photocopies of each page of the manuscripts. There are about 1,000 pages, 794 of which are in perfect condition.

Only one of these volumes was hitherto known to exist. It was found by an Egyptian peasant some years ago, sold to an antiquary for a small sum and subsequently published.

The other 12 were found by Egyptian peasants in 1946 at Nag Hammadi, about 70 miles north of Luxor, in a large earthenware jar buried near the spot where the first Christian monasteries were founded in the 4th century.—France-Press.

Giant Tankers For Britain

London, Oct. 10.

The British Petroleum Company, formerly the Anglo-Iranian, is to include several giant 60,000-ton deadweight tankers in its fleet, as a consequence of the Suez Canal dispute.

This was announced by the company's chairman, B. R. Jackson, at the launching at Clydebank today of the British industry, the company's largest tanker—32,000 tons.

The company now owns 114 vessels totalling 2,018,000 tons, one of the largest petroleum fleets in the world.

Forty-one other ships are under construction, seven of them of 41,000-ton deadweight tonnage. The 60,000-ton tankers are to be built at the John Brown and Company yards on the Clyde.—France-Press.

White Slavery Racket Disclosure

Rome, Oct. 10.

THE vice squad of the Rome police last night arrested a 37-year-old alcoholic dancer, Gianni Aloco, alleged to have supplied "raw material" to an international "white slavery" ring.

Aloco reportedly had approached young pretty girls in the Italian capital and had offered them contracts as "dancers" in Greece.

After the contract was signed, the girls reportedly were "shipped" to Athens by plane, where they were told that due to unforeseen difficulties, the show in which "they" were to take part had been cancelled. Emancipation of the "white slavery" ring then contacted the stranded and now penniless girls. The girls then were reportedly "shuttled" into an "activity" completely different from that which had been promised them.

A number of the luckless girls were said even to have been transferred to certain Middle Eastern and Far Eastern countries.

The Rome vice squad is still continuing its investigation of the case. Several young girls who had contacted Aloco have been interrogated by the police.—France-Press.

Portuguese Timor Hurts Indonesians

Djakarta, Oct. 10.

A group of Indonesian youths and students unanimously agreed last night to set up a movement called the anti-colonial movement which would strive towards the holding of a plebiscite in Portuguese occupied Timor, East Indonesia, and "pave the way for the right of self-determination of local inhabitants of the island in accordance to United Nations Charter."

Mr Indra Suyakawati, chairman of the movement said his movement was not especially directed against Portuguese colonialism in Timor but against "any form of colonialism which is still prevailing within or bordering Indonesia's territory."

He said Portuguese Timor was "a reminiscence" of colonialism and "conspicuously more closely interrelated with other Indonesian islands in the archipelago, for instance West Irian (West New Guinea)."

He reminded that Holland was also a member and the Dutch would be allowed to make use of such a base.

"Our task is to actively contribute towards the abolition of colonialism everywhere in the world and not the least these at our doorsteps," Mr Suyakawati said.

According to him the position of Portuguese Timor was "identical" to the Portuguese and French enclaves in India such as Goa, Daman, Diu and Pondicherry.

Asked whether his movement also applied to British Borneo, he said that though the situation was "rather different" his movement "will not rest until a free and democratic government is also established there."—Reuter.

He landed by plane in this town in the northern part of the territory after six years exile because of his marriage to a white woman.

He found more than 3,000 men, women and children at the airport to greet him.

The wild excitement of the crowd made him cancel his plan to speak to them. Police held them back, and at one stage the situation looked so serious that rifles were handed out to the police.

But the crowd broke up when Seretse Khama drove away from the airport with the Divisional Commissioner.

The 33-year-old British-educated Seretse returned as a private citizen. Renunciation of claims to the chieftainship by himself and his children was the condition imposed by the British Government for the ending of his exile in England.—Reuter.

Other nation, Strauss said, "On the contrary, we stand as the acknowledged world leader in every aspect of nuclear development, both for national and peaceful uses."

He said that 18 atomic plants to provide power for civilian homes and industries are planned. The first will be completed next year and six of the 18 are being built by industry "without depending on the Government for any direct financial subsidy."

He said industry had such faith in the soundness of the Administration's atomic policy that it is prepared to invest upwards of $200 million in those six plants.

Encouragement Strauss also assailed charges that big business is the primary beneficiary of the atomic programme. He said firms employing fewer than 500 persons will do one-fourth of the work on the $40 million nuclear part of the shipping port, Pennsylvania, plant, nearing completion.

Under the "encouragement and import" of the Administration, Strauss said, American firms "are already discussing contracts totalling more than $200 million for nuclear power plants abroad."—United Press.

The delegation, which arrived here last Saturday on a six-week visit, will inspect Japanese industries and study the productivity movement in Japan.

Upon its return to India, the delegation will recommend the establishment of an Indian counterpart of the Japanese productivity centre and the European Productivity Council. Dr. Sarabhai said.—United Press.

The device, known as the "radiological defence warning system", has been installed in one of the United States chief military bases and will be set up at air bases and key industrial and communications centres throughout the nation, the Department said.

The device, which costs less than $500 to build, pinpoints the blast instantly and then automatically sets off warning sirens, closes radiation proof doors and activates anti-radiation filters.

The announcement said the system comprises several instruments including a gamma ray detector and a thermal detector which would be activated by infra-red rays given off by an atom or hydrogen blast.

These instruments are installed in small aluminium cylinders which are placed atop steel platforms encircling the area to be protected, the Department said.

It said the system would function even in case the blast involved the platforms containing the instruments.—France-Press.

Seretse Khama Mobbed On Homecoming

Francistown, Oct. 10.

Scenes of almost hysterical enthusiasm greeted Seretse Khama, former Chief of the Bamangwato tribe, and prevented him from making a speech when he arrived back among his people today.

He landed by plane in this town in the northern part of the territory after six years exile because of his marriage to a white woman.

He found more than 3,000 men, women and children at the airport to greet him.

The wild excitement of the crowd made him cancel his plan to speak to them. Police held them back, and at one stage the situation looked so serious that rifles were handed out to the police.

Productivity Centre For Asia

Tokyo, Oct. 10.

An official Indian "productivity" delegation now in Japan announced today that it will co-operate with the Japanese productivity centre to accelerate the "productivity movement" in Asian countries.

Dr Vikram Sarabhai, head of the delegation, told a press conference that he also agreed with a Japanese proposal that an "Asian productivity centre" should be set up in Southeast Asia. Such a centre would improve productivity in the area, he said.

The delegation, which arrived here last Saturday on a six-week visit, will inspect Japanese industries and study the productivity movement in Japan.

Upon its return to India, the delegation will recommend the establishment of an Indian counterpart of the Japanese productivity centre and the European Productivity Council. Dr. Sarabhai said.—United Press.

WORLD SERIES

YANKEES CRUSH DODGERS 9-0 TO WIN THEIR 7TH WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

By OSCAR FRALEY

Brooklyn, Oct. 10.

Squat Yogi Berra broke Dodgers hearts with a pair of $100,000 homers and young Johnny Kucka broke their backs with three-hit pitching today to crush Brooklyn, 9-0, and give the New York Yankees their seventh World Championship in ten years.

The Yankees, turning on all their long-famed power in this seventh and final game of the annual classic, made it a Mauling Mardigras before 33,782 Ebbets Field fans as Berra's two-run pair, one by Elston Howard and a grand-slammer by Burly Moose Skowron provided an all-time record of 12 homers for the Series.

Berra's blasts in the first and third innings gave him 10 runs batted in to break the immortal Lou Gehrig's 26-year-old record for the Series and set up his own heartbreak. Berra's two-run pair, one by Elston Howard and a grand-slammer by Burly Moose Skowron provided an all-time record of 12 homers for the Series.

Kucka, the "sinker-ball" baby of the Yankees pitching staff, pitched it up with a fantastic four as he handed the Dodgers the most humiliating seventh-game Series defeat since the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Detroit Tigers, 11-0, in the 1931 final.

He had only six best runners, each of him, this blue-skinned, curly-haired, three-hits-and-three-walks-and-he-topped-his-only-struck-out-against-the-final-man, Jackie Robinson, whose hit had won yesterday's squaring 18th game.

GRIM DEFEAT

And once again it was grim defeat for Newcombe, beaten twice by the Yankees in 1949, once in 1955 and taken off the hook in the second game this time around by a magnificent rally after he had given up six hits and six runs in one and two-thirds innings.

Newcombe went slightly further this time in search of "the big one" but he didn't get off the hook as he yielded five hits three of them homers, and five runs in 61 fateful pitches.

HE'S IN THE ARMY NOW

Loaded with all his newly issued kit, British and Empire Flyweight Boxing Champion Dai Dower can really feel that he is in the Army. As 2343412 Private Dower, he had just joined the Welsh Regiment at Malindi Barracks, Cardiff, to start his two years' National Service.

He has been working as a minor near his home at Abercynon, Glamorgan, and is in training for a return fight with Young Martin, of Spain, who took the European flyweight title from him.

Dower hopes to be allowed to continue his training and to meet Young Martin again before Christmas.—Reuterphoto.

Then it was Berra, who knocked Newcombe out of the box in the second game with a grand slam homer. And Yogi had the same script on hand.

He lofted a homer high over the right field screen into busy Bedford Avenue for a two-run Yankee lead.

Newcombe then struck out Skowron to return the side—but already it was too late.

Brooklyn mounted its biggest threat in the bottom of the first when, with one away, it sent walked and Duke Snider singled to left. But Robinson, the hero of the sixth game, dashed into a double play.

From there on, the Yankees made it a field day. They ran their lead to 4-0 in the third after Martin laced a single to center with one out. Newcombe whistled his last ball past Mantle for the second out—but then it was Yogi once more.

As in the first inning, Yogi got two strikes against him. Then he put two against Newcombe with a towering two-run shot high over the right field wall. That was the one which broke the Yankees' mark of nine runs batted in for one series, set in 1928.

Berra, whoops not only helped set a pair of series records, but they also virtually clinched for himself and his Yankees teammates the major portion of the $693,561.53 players pool.

VICTORY AND DEFEAT

With 60 percent divided among the winning players, there was a difference of approximately $150,000 between victory and defeat. And off-season endorsements and public appearances will undoubtedly raise that victorious net to more than $200,000. A full Yankee share should be worth about $9,500 when the series splits are announced and that Dodgers about $9,000.

Then, Howard, first man up in the Yankees fourth, put the third strike-and-out call against Newcombe when he belted a homer over the right field scoreboard to make it 5-0.

The boss of the crowd ringing in his ears, Newcombe trudged off with head down. Don Bessent, second of five Dodger pitchers, took over next and held the Yankees off for three innings before retiring in 6th.

B—Bounced out for Roebuck in 6th. And final 1956 World Series game at Brooklyn: New York (A) 202-100-400—9-10-0. Brooklyn (N) 000-000-000—0-3-1.

In the three friendly matches, the Korean team beat both its Chinese and Vietnamese rivals. The Vietnamese lost to both the Korean and Chinese sides while the Chinese won and lost one game.

At today's match, no score was made by either side during the first half. When play was resumed the Koreans launched an all out attack and scored three goals within 20 minutes.—France Press.

AFTER THE GAME

Dodgers Admit They've Been Clubbed Silly By A Group Of Yankees

"They beat the hell out of us," Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers was the first to say it, but the phrase soon echoed through the gloom of defeat in the Brooklyn clubhouse as Dodger after Dodger conceded they'd been clubbed silly by an aroused group of Yankees in the seventh game of the World Series.

"Don Newcombe had great stuff," said Alston, "but it was either a knockout or over the fence for a bunch of runs. Don couldn't do anything else in between."

The heartbroken loser, Newcombe, departed swiftly—he was dressed and gone within minutes of the time Alston pulled him in the fourth.

"He was fast," said Roy Campanella. "Yogi Berra hit a bad pitch for a two-run homer in the second inning. It didn't hit the first time Yogi hit one off his ear and it won't be the last. But he hit another good homer off a good pitch in the third and then Elston Howard homered off a change-up. That was the ball game."

A GAME TRY Governor Averell Harriman was among the first to visit Brooklyn's clubhouse and Campanella told him, "How do you like that? We win one for the President but can't win for the Governor."

"I was with you all the way, though," said the Governor. "It was a game try." Alston said the turning point in the series, in his opinion, was Don Larsen's perfect game giving the Yankees "that all-important third victory in the series."

"If we could have won that, it might have been different," said Walt. "That game was the big one. I guess we all knew it."

Jackie Robinson, whose tenth inning single kept the Brooks alive yesterday, had another turning point to Reelie. "We just dropped dead at bat," he said. "I never saw a club quit hitting the way we did all of a sudden. It wasn't the old Yankee Stadium jinx at all."

"We didn't get any hits here at home the second time, did we?"

"We have no excuses," said the veteran Pee Wee Reese, who had faced the Yankees seven times in World Series play and now was bemoaning his sixth defeat. "All I can say is they beat the hell out of us."—United Press.

Something Must Be Done To Stop These Boxing Fiascos

Says DENNIS HART

We've had the big fight—at least the Dick Richardson-Ezzard Charles meeting was billed as a big fight. We've had the inquiry. Now we want action.

We not only want action, we must have it, in the interests of everybody—customers, fighters, promoters, referees and the Board of Control itself.

For if something is not done the customers who, at Harrington, showed their disapproval vocally will do it in a more passive but far more telling manner—they will cease to be customers.

These points, however, are raised for the good of boxing, not in defence of Charles. Just as a referee might be more tactful with a former world champion. It is the champion who should not need to be lectured on how to box.

IDEAL SOLUTION

But what is to be done for the future? The ideal solution would be for England and America to work out a common procedure for fighting and conducting boxing matches. Although it is difficult to imagine that even in America Charles would, as he claimed, have been allowed to proceed unchecked.

Such a merger, however, must remain a pipe-dream. The Yankee can't even settle on one method between themselves. What can be done is for these matters to be fully explained at the very outset. When fight contracts are signed between boxers from different countries the visiting fighter must have these differences clearly pointed out.

Then the promoter can put the light on with easy confidence, the fans can turn up confident of a good night's sport and so on the referee.

Rocky Accuses 'I Was Blinded'

Rocky Marciano, former World Heavyweight Champion, shook America a few days ago with the accusation that someone attempted to blind him temporarily during his fight with Jersey Joe Walcott at Philadelphia in September 1952.

I PRAYED...PLEASE CLEAR MY EYES

My story... by ROCKY MARCIANO

"Please, God, let me get my eyes clear. This is important to me. Please do that for me, and I can handle the rest."

The suppliant was Rocky Marciano. The occasion was his fight against the then World Heavyweight Champion, Jersey Joe Walcott, at Philadelphia in September 1952.

Marciano swapped the title and instead of getting better by knocking Walcott out with a right to the jaw in the 13th round.

The reason for the prayer was a dimmed attempt to blind him temporarily, according to Marciano's own story, through someone putting capsaicin ointment on Walcott's gloves.

"I'm sure Jersey Joe himself had nothing to do with this," Marciano says. "He was a helluva fighter that night, even without any extra help."

"Every time Walcott jabbed me and his glove came in contact with my eyes, or every time I clinched with him and got my face against his body, my eyes would smart."

"ON HIS GLOVES" Afterward, a policeman told me about the stuff that got into your eyes. It can be powdered, mixed in oil or used as a jelly. It was rubbed on Walcott's gloves.

"The whole thing was clear. It fitted in with what happened that night and with my having to go to a doctor to get my eyes treated for eight weeks."

"In the sixth, we had bumped heads and blood started streaming down my forehead and into my eyes. They started to burn. It was the seventh round of the whole world."

"When this fight with Walcott was over we all said Rocky looked as though he had been repeatedly blinded."

"Walcott had a cut eye. His seconds put a yellow ointment on it. We felt that whatever it was unintentionally came into contact with Rocky's eyes."

Sometimes when seconds can slip a little yellow ointment on a guy's gloves and get away with it, they do. But if a referee sees them the fight is off."

"All this came up at the time of the fight and it was all passed by. It was no secret. Everyone talks about it. No one took action. Labels never come into it."

"In the U.S. no one thinks about libel. It is forgotten, but Rocky chooses to remember it for a pension."

Blame Eye Solution
Says FELIX BOCCHICCHIO
(Jersey Joe Walcott's manager)

"It is very silly of Rocky to drag this up now. The affair seen from our point of view is very different."

"Rocky hit Joe with a certain part of his head. (He was twice warned by the referee for butting)."

"He (Rocky) suffered a bad head wound and there was a fountain of blood. His team doused his head with an illegal coagulate solution."

"We believe it was this which streamed into his eyes and blinded him. This solution can blind people permanently. It was very dangerous to use it."

"But this whole argument was thrashed out between us at the time. I spoke to Commissioner Degross. Nothing more was said."

"Rocky has raked it up for magazine circulation purposes."

I Chose City Just To Be Different

By KEITH BAILEY

(In an interview with Eric Nicholls).

Stowed away in the bottom of my wardrobe at home is a rattle. It is painted red and white on one side for United, blue on the other for City. I may be only 10, but at least I'm old enough to know that Manchester is the finest footballing city in the world.

Say what you like about Manchester. Crack your jokes about those ruined-off Test matches. You can't beat their footballers. After all, City won the Cup, United the League Championship. And City were fourth in the League.

What more do you want? When you live in Manchester you have a choice. City are home on one Saturday. United the next. Although my Dad is a United fan, I chose City. Why? Just to be different, I suppose. It had nothing to do with Dad, either.

It was like this. My best pal came to school one Monday morning wearing a big red and white rattle. He had been to see his first football match, on the Saturday. It was at Old Trafford, and he couldn't stop talking about how great United were. I remember saying: "Oh, I cannot City!" It was just to be different.

I was only 14 when City played Newcastle in the Cup Final. That's when the rattle got its second coat of paint, by the way. A neighbour managed to get a ticket for the Final. So I let him borrow the family rattle.

UNITED'S COLOURS It only had United's colours on one side, so our neighbour painted City's light blue on the other side.

I couldn't eat my dinner quick enough that day. I wasn't interested in food. All I wanted was to switch on the television and see City walk out on to the Wembley pitch and win the Cup.

PROBLEM FOR MELBOURNE
"Spanish Style" Javelin Throwing

Paris, Oct. 10. Spain's 49-year-old athlete Felix Erasquin has been chosen to represent his country at the Olympic Games in Melbourne next month, Madrid Radio reported yesterday.

Erasquin, who set up a new Spanish javelin record in Barcelona on Sunday, with a distance of 74.32 metres, (243 feet 10 inches) uses the discus throwing style for his javelin throwing.

In this "Spanish style" javelin throwing, the athletes graze the javelin with soap or soapy water so that it slips easily in the hand.

Generally no one can tell where the javelin is going to go, which makes the "Spanish style" dangerous.

Most modern Spanish javelin throwers have adopted this method, however. — France-Press.

Shah To Accompany Iranian Team To Melbourne
Tehran, Oct. 10. The Shah of Iran will accompany personally the Iranian team to compete in the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne next month, reported the evening newspaper "Ettelaat" here today. — France-Press.

SO 'FUNNY' I see the "knockers" have again been at it. In the case of some folk ALL Soccer players—not just professionals—are looked upon without much favour.

At the slightest possible opportunity we are accused of being either bad sportsmen or dirty players.

This annoys me, for considering how every player must get worked up in the course of 90 exciting minutes, the sportsmanship that prevails should be a talking point instead of a few "incidents" exaggerated out of all proportion.

World Chess Contest For Sailors
Oslo. The Norwegian Steamers Welfare Office is to organize a world-wide chess tournament for the 40,000 seamen in the Norwegian merchant fleet. The Welfare Office is also organizing football leagues and other sporting contests for seamen all over the world.

Books, films, and correspondence courses are also provided by the office which is financed jointly by the seamen's ship-owners and the State. — China Mail Special.

ENGLAND BOSS TOLD US A SECRET AND WE WON!

By BILLY WRIGHT

(Captain of England and Wales)

Don't go around Mr Winterbottom, you are wasting your time! That's what Soccer's sneerers say when they read that England's manager—and the England team come to that—is travelling to "spy" on the sides we are to oppose.

But that's because they do not know their Soccer tactics. For instance, they do not know how Walter Winterbottom hit on the secret which enabled England to humble Brazil 4-2 at Wembley last May.

Mr Winterbottom hopped over to see the match between Austria and Brazil, in Vienna, to gain a few tips for the Wembley game.

He noticed that the Brazilian full-backs invariably took the throw-ins, leaving the half-backs "square." This meant that the wing halves were outstanding in the South American's triumph.

But not at Wembley. Mr Winterbottom had warned us of this move, and we were able to counter it and win.

When I first went abroad with the England team we didn't make the careful preparations accepted as commonplace today because so many of us were in the Services.

Our practice we had at Lillishall these past few days, plus the visit to Dublin to watch the Eire-Denmark match, will prove invaluable to us all in the games ahead.

You can always learn something from watching any match. As Denmark shortly meet us in a World Cup game at Wembley, we naturally picked up plenty of valuable information.

COACHING OFFER Ken Armstrong, Chelsea and England right-half, and an FA coach, has for years practised and preched the value of good football.

Now Ken the Golfer, who has also stressed the value of hard practice at golf, has won a professional footballers' golf championship.

This is probably the last time Ken will take part in this championship. He has received an offer to settle in New Zealand as a Soccer coach, plus a £20 a week job at a salesman, and a car.

"It's a wonderful offer which I must seriously consider," says Ken. —(London Express Service).

NIGERIAN RAILWAYS ARE SPREADING RAPIDLY

But Desert Camel Caravans Still Come To Kano

Lagos, Nigeria, Oct. 10.

Although desert camel caravans still link up with the railway at Kano, in the heart of Northern Nigeria, the railway itself is today an efficient and growing system, with modern diesel locomotives and up-to-date rolling stock.

It is, in fact, one of the bright spots in Nigeria's expanding economy.

No longer seen are the huge pyramids of stacked groundnuts which used to be such a feature of the Northern landscape before the railway was able to cope with moving the huge crop to the sea. Last year, was an all-time record harvest of 480,000 tons, all of which had been cleared in good time for the approaching new season in spite of the long haul of 700 miles or more to the southern ports for shipment overseas.

The present railway system runs from Lagos on the coast, to Kano, over 700 miles to the north, through the Western and Northern Regional capitals of Ibadan and Kaduna, and then loops southeast through Jos, the central tin mining area, and Enugu, the Eastern Regional capital to the sea again at Port Harcourt. There are branch lines at various points.

HUMID FORESTS

From Lagos and the humid coastal forests of the south, one travels through the savannah and desert of the Northern Region, to the rolling Jos plateau, across the mighty Niger and Benue and many smaller rivers down to the hills. Enugu, where Nigeria's coal mines, now producing nearly a million tons a year, bite deep into the hillsides and thence back to the coastal forest area.

Plans are now going ahead to extend the railway for about 400 miles, from a point near Jos on the central plateau to Maiduguri, in the north-east corner of the country near Lake Chad. The new branch line, which will cost £20,000,000 and take some years to complete, will greatly assist agricultural development in the fertile provinces of Bauchi and Borno, where the soil is ideal for the cultivation of foodstuffs, groundnuts and cotton.

Effective means of transport is especially important to such a rapidly growing country as Nigeria, where efforts are continually being made to improve and strengthen the over-all economy of the country, the general standard of living and welfare of the community. It is hoped that by this extension of the railway into the undeveloped areas of north-eastern Nigeria, the peoples of Bauchi and Borno will in time enjoy a new prosperity and a greatly improved standard of living.

CONSIDERABLE VOLUME

Having regard to the nearness of the Maiduguri railway to the Chad Valley, in French Equatorial Africa, a considerable volume of traffic is expected over the new line.

The extension will also greatly facilitate the movement of livestock, including the long and wasteful journeys now undertaken along the ancient cattle trails to the coast, which run through the tsetse belt.

The great increase in primary production in Nigeria in the last few years has resulted in a correspondingly greater demand for rail transport.

In addition to groundnuts, which represent one-third of the railway's total revenue from freight, crops include cotton, oil, tin, columbite, coal, palm oil, and kernels, hides and skins.

Less than 15 per cent of railway earnings comes from passenger traffic.

Typical of the progress which has been made was the completion last year of a special nine-mile long branch line costing £160,000, to the new cement works at Nkalagu in the Eastern Region. This track reached the cement works boundary in September 1955, and building materials for the cement factory began to be delivered from that time.

HEAVIEST LOADS

The heaviest loads ever carried by rail in Nigeria, comprising large pieces of machinery for the cement works, were transported from Port Harcourt in May this year along this new line to Nkalagu. To do it, it was necessary to lower the track under the sack-conveyor at Port Harcourt, raise the main Port Harcourt-Abe road overbridge and adjust the steel-work in the Iro River Bridge.

Annual traffic on the new branch line is estimated at 80,000 tons of cement, 25,000 tons of coal, 3,000 tons of grain, and 8,000 tons of building materials, food and other stores.

Recently, a 100-ton consignment of heavy caterpillar tractors and excavators from Britain and the United States was delivered at Kailana, 800 miles from Lagos. The tractors cost £140,000 and are for use in road development schemes.

Machinery weighing some 10,000 tons is being hauled for the new textile factory now nearing completion. The first consignment has been delivered, and others are due to arrive at regular intervals in the near future.

CORPORATION

The railway, previously a government department, became a statutory corporation in October 1955. For the year ended March 31, 1956, it had an operating surplus of £2,712,000 following receipt of £13,388,000.

Conditions of service and scales of pay are now being reviewed.

An extensive programme of staff training has been drawn up and there are over 500 mechanical and other apprentices in training, and 500 other grades receiving regular instruction.

Employment of Nigerians is being pushed ahead rapidly, but this policy can only be successful if the training given has been thoroughly absorbed and reinforced by a sufficient period of on the job experience.

The Corporation claims that in railway working there is no substitute for this practical experience.

BEGAN IN 1898

Construction of the railway began in 1898, a line between Lagos and Ibadan, a distance of 120 miles, being opened in 1901. Queen Elizabeth II travelled on this original section during her last year (1955).

In 1955, ten diesel locomotives were put into service, and more will be used as existing stock wears out.

Apart from being more economical to run, diesel locomotives have an added advantage in a country where, as in the north, there are severe water shortages in the dry seasons.

A 5-year-plan costing £16,000,000 for development works, including relaying certain sections with heavier track, remodelling of stations, double wire signalling and control telephones, new running sheds, staff quarters and the replacement of rolling stock, has been prepared.

ROLLING STOCK

The latest type of first class rolling stock provides sleeping compartments, each fitted with toilet, shower, hand-washing facilities and accommodation for two to four persons.—China Mail Special.

Archbishop Exiled In Bohemia

Prague, Oct. 10.

Monsignor Josef Beran, Archbishop of Prague, who has been exiled from his diocese by government order, is now living in Bohemia, a high official of the Czech office of cults disclosed today to an AFP correspondent.

The official said that Archbishop Beran was living in a villa placed at his disposal by the Czech Catholic organisation, "Charita."

The 68-year-old Prelate, who had an automobile, was said to be free to go wherever he pleased except to his diocese. A group of nuns were taking care of the Archbishop's residence.

Archbishop Beran could say Mass in his private chapel and was keeping in close touch with Monsignor Anton Stehlik, who was administering the diocese of Prague with the Government's agreement.

Earlier today, official sources in Prague stated that Monsignor Jan Vojtasak, aged 70, former Bishop of Spala, and Monsignor Michael Buzek, aged 71, auxiliary Bishop of Trnava, had been released from prison. Both were serving long prison terms for "high military treason and espionage."—France-Press.

YUGOSLAV NOMINATED FOR ASIA

Belgrade, Oct. 10.

Mr. Vladimir Bakuric, President of Croatia and a member of the Communist Party Politburo, will represent Yugoslavia at next month's Asian Socialist conference in India, it was announced here today.

Mr. Bakuric, who is also a member of the Government's mass political organisation, the Socialist Alliance, will leave here at the end of the week for Bombay. The 10-day conference opens on November 1.

Foreign observers here regarded the announcement as being of more than routine interest—because of President Tito's week-long secret talks with Soviet leaders in the Crimea last week.

One point of dispute between the Yugoslav and Soviet parties is thought to be their different views on the role of Socialist parties in the world today. The Yugoslavs said the Socialist parties were advancing towards socialism; the Soviets said they were not.—Reuter.
